

ELITE NETWORK OF BAVARIA

The Elite Graduate Program in East European Studies is part of the Elite Network of Bavaria (ENB). The Bavarian State Government has been promoting young academics through its Elite Network since 2004 by providing funding for staff and resources of Elite Graduate Programs, International Doctorate Programs and Junior Research Groups. This financial support made it possible to launch the Elite Graduate Program in East European Studies. The ENB offers its students exclusive soft skills seminars other networking events. For more information, visit www.elitenetzwerk.bayern.de.

Elitenetzwerk
Bayern

DEGREE

Students with a first degree (at least Bachelor's) acquire a Master of Arts (MA).

APPLICATION

The closing date for applications is 14 June 2019. The graduate program begins in the winter semester and lasts four semesters.

For information on application requirements and answers to frequently asked questions, please visit www.osteuropastudien.de.

CONTACT

Elite Graduate Program for East European Studies
Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München
Department of East and South East European History
Geschwister-Scholl-Platz 1
80539 Munich
Germany

Dr Felix Jeschke
Coordinator of the Elite Graduate Program in East European Studies
Phone +49-89-21 80 54 79
E-mail osteuropastudien@lrz.uni-muenchen.de

Universität Regensburg

www.osteuropastudien.de

Design Sebastian Lehnert, Leipzig www.deskism.com

UNIVERSITY OF MUNICH
UNIVERSITY OF REGENSBURG

MASTER'S PROGRAM EAST EUROPEAN STUDIES

We provide knowledge of Eastern Europe

PROGRAM

The aim of the graduate program, which is taught in German, is to provide students with expertise in Eastern, East Central and South East European area studies.

You will be required to collect 120 ECTS credits over the course of four semesters. You can choose two or three subjects of study.

In addition, you will be required to complete a project course lasting two semesters, intensive language courses, a summer school in Eastern Europe and an internship related to the region.

You will be taught by specialists in East European studies from both Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität in Munich and the University of Regensburg.

The Graduate School for East and South-east European Studies, the Collegium Carolinum, the Leibniz Institute for East and Southeast European Studies (IOS), the Institute for East European Law and the East European Department of the Bavarian State Library are all involved in the graduate program.

By the time you graduate, you will have learned to analyse developments and situations in Eastern Europe and place them in their political, legal, economic, historical and cultural contexts.

SUBJECTS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MUNICH

History of Eastern and South Eastern Europe

Slavonic Languages and Literatures

Political Science

European Ethnology

Jewish History and Culture

Turkish and Ottoman Studies

General and Comparative Literature

SUBJECTS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF REGENSBURG

Law

Slavonic Literatures, Languages and Cultures

Comparative Literature

History of South Eastern and Eastern Europe

Economics

CONTENT

In the graduate program, we do not approach Eastern Europe as a closed space, but see it in relation to Western Europe and other major regions. The course explores the various historical meanings of the term "Eastern Europe". The curriculum is interdisciplinary.

The courses deal with various countries in Eastern Europe, often in a comparative way. Comparisons are also drawn with developments and situations in Western Europe.

REQUIREMENTS

Students who wish to embark on this graduate program should have a demonstrable interest in Eastern Europe, an excellent first degree, fluent German, at least basic knowledge of an East European language and proficient English.

We are also interested in applicants who are involved in social and political work.