Once you have made your choice, please refer to our enrolment guide. Course admission is determined based on a "first come, first served" principle and/or consent of the course convenor (academic staff member responsible for coordinating and teaching the course). Important:

Please note: The start dates of UW online courses may not correspond with the start of the teaching period at your home institution. Most of the UW online courses start on 22 February, that is before the end of the enrolment period (1 February-14 March 2021).

Please check with an adviser at your home institution whether the course you have selected will be recognised in your programme as a core, optional or elective course.

If the course cannot be recognised as part of your degree programme, you can still take it as a form of extracurricular activity.
